

In the present work, the histopathological changes of the nasal mucosa following unilateral and bilateral nasal obstruction and the effect of this obstruction on the middle ear mucosa were studied. The study was conducted on non lined albino male rats subjected to variable periods of unilateral and bilateral nostril closure.

REVIEW OF LITERATURE

---