

Contents

|                                                               | page |
|---------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| Acknowledgement                                        |      |
| Abstract                                               |      |
| List of figures                                        | iii  |
| List of tables                                         | xiii |
| Chapter I                                              |      |
| INTRODUCTION                                           | 1    |
| 1.1 Previous work                                             | 5    |
| 1.2 Aims and scope of the present study                       | 11   |
| Chapter II                                             |      |
| FIELD ASPECTS AND PETROGRAPHIC FEATURES.               |      |
| 2.1 Regional set up                                           | 12   |
| 2.2 Sampling                                                  | 22   |
| 2.2.1 Trench samples                                          | 22   |
| 2.2.2 Spot surface sample                                     | 23   |
| 2.2.3 Hard rock sampling                                      | 23   |
| 2.3 Microscopic features                                      | 28   |
| 2.3.1 Metasediments (Schist)                                  | 28   |
| 2.3.2 Serpentinities                                          | 28   |
| 2.3.3 Metagabbros                                             | 28   |
| 2.3.4 Grey granite ( GI )                                     | 29   |
| 2.3.5 Albite granites                                         | 35   |
| 2.3.6 The post-albite granite dykes                           | 36   |
| Chapter III                                            |      |
| GRAIN SIZE ANALYSES                                    |      |
| 3.1 Introduction                                              | 42   |
| 3.2 Sample Preparation                                        | 43   |
| 3.3 Grain size distribution of sand size                      | 48   |
| 3.4 Histograms                                                | 49   |
| 3.5 Cumulative frequency curves:-                             | 54   |
| 3.5.1 Graphic mean (Mz)                                       | 60   |
| 3.5.2 The inclusive graphic standard deviation ( $\sigma I$ ) | 61   |
| 3.5.3 The inclusive graphic skewness (SKI)                    | 62   |
| 3.5.4 Graphic kurtosis (KG)                                   | 63   |
| 3.5.5 Bivariant plots                                         | 64   |
| Chapter IV                                             |      |
| MINERALOGICAL STUDIES                                  |      |
| 4.1 Introduction                                              | 69   |
| 4.2 Technique of study                                        | 69   |
| 4.2.1 Heavy liquid separation                                 | 70   |
| 4.2.2 Magnetite separation                                    | 74   |
| 4.2.3 Magnetic fractionation                                  | 75   |
| 4.3 Relations between magnetite and total heavy               | 75   |
| 4.4 Microscopic examination                                   | 80   |

|                     |                                                                                        |     |
|---------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
|                     | 4.5 Heavy minerals description                                                  | 80  |
|                     | 4.5.1 Opaque minerals                                                                  | 81  |
|                     | 4.5.2 Non opaque minerals                                                              | 105 |
| Chapter V    | GEOCHEMICAL INVESTIGATION                                                       |     |
|                     | 5.1 Geochemistry of Intrusive rocks                                             | 131 |
|                     | 5.1.1 Introduction & Materials and Methods                                             | 131 |
|                     | 5.1.2 Geochemical investigation                                                        | 131 |
|                     | 5.1.3 Variation diagrams                                                               | 135 |
|                     | 5.1.4 Geochemical classification                                                       | 140 |
|                     | 5.1.5 Magma type                                                                       | 141 |
|                     | 5.1.6 Tectonic setting                                                                 | 145 |
|                     | 5.2 Geochemistry of stream sediments                                            | 150 |
|                     | 5.2.1 Introduction and Materials                                                       | 150 |
|                     | 5.2.2 Major oxides                                                                     | 150 |
|                     | 5.2.3 Trace elements                                                                   | 157 |
| Chapter VI   | RADIOMETRIC DATA                                                                |     |
|                     | 6.1 Airborne gamma-ray spectrometry data analysis                               | 159 |
|                     | 6.1.1 Total Count (Ur) Contour Map                                                     | 160 |
|                     | 6.1.2 Potassium (K %) Contour Map                                                      | 160 |
|                     | 6.1.3 Equivalent Uranium (eU ppm) Contour Map                                          | 160 |
|                     | 6.1.4 Equivalent Thorium (eTh ppm) Contour Map                                         | 160 |
|                     | 6.1.5 eU/eTh Ratio Contour Map                                                         | 161 |
|                     | 6.1.6 eTh/K Ratio Contour Map                                                          | 161 |
|                     | 6.1.7 eU/K Ratio Contour Map                                                           | 161 |
|                     | 6.1.8 Uranium mobility map {eU-(eTh/3.5)}                                              | 161 |
|                     | 6.2 Statistical Analysis aerospectrometric Data                                 | 166 |
|                     | 6.3 Ground radiometry                                                           | 171 |
|                     | 6.3.1 The Ground radiometric Survey                                                    | 171 |
|                     | 6.3.2 Field radiometric survey                                                         | 171 |
|                     | 6.3.3 Laboratory radiometry analysis                                                   | 172 |
| Chapter VII  | SUBSURFACE DATA                                                                 |     |
|                     | 7.1 Aeromagnetic survey                                                         | 177 |
|                     | 7.2 Ground magnetic survey                                                      | 181 |
|                     | 7.2.1 Magnetic Interpretation                                                          | 181 |
|                     | 7.3 The drilled boreholes measurement data                                      | 182 |
|                     | 7.4 Tantalite-columbite preliminary evaluation in Eastern part of Nuweibi area: | 193 |
| Chapter VIII | SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION.                                                         | 195 |
|                     | REFERENCES.                                                                     | 211 |
|                     | ARABIC SUMMARY.                                                                 |     |