

CONCLUSION

Qualitative β -hCG testing of vaginal fluid is useful, rapid and inexpensive test for detection of preterm premature rupture of membranes and can be used in outpatient as bedside procedure.

The higher the level of sensitivity of the test the higher will be its specificity in diagnosis of PPRM.