

aureus represent the main pathogenic organisms isolated from PCM children.

This study shows that malnourished children have a considerable pathogenic and opportunistic pathogenic micro organisms in the skin and mucous membranes that may be of etiological significance as a cause of the high incidence of infections and diarrhea in PCM children, as well as in pathogenesis of malnutrition.