

A STUDY OF SOME PSYCHOLOGICAL CHARACTERISTICS
RELATED TO THE COMPETENCE OF SUPERVISORS IN OMAN

ABSTRACT OF THE STUDY

Introduction:

The competence of the supervisor is related to his leadership style as well as the psychological characteristics this study is concerned with studying some psychological characteristics related to the supervisors competence in Oman.

The problem of the present study appeared as a result of surveying the studies and series in this field as well as the questionnaire of educational specialists in this field in Oman.

The psychological and mental aspects are related together and they play a very great role in the nature of the supervisors work and they can distinguish the nature of the supervisors work and the interaction of all these aspects.

Objectives of the study:

The present study aims at knowing the psychological characteristics related to the supervisors work as well as the psychological traits related to the supervisors competence. It also reveals the differences between the supervisors in the character aspects as it is revealed by Cattles test to shed the light on the real rate of leadership in the supervisors previous studies:

<

The researcher reviewed the previous studies related to the present study as follows:

- 1- Studies of the importance of supervisor.
- 2- Studies of the supervisor's characteristics and styles of supervision.
- 3- Studies of supervision competence.
- 4- Studies of the leadership and the supervision role.
- 5- Studies of the psychological characteristics and traits and their relation to competence.

Hypotheses of the study:

- 1- There are significant differences between low and high competence supervisors in leadership aspects.
- 2- There are significant differences between the low and high competence supervisors in the characters aspects.